

The Brown Branch

my grandfather lived in a simple house near a winding cool branch with slippery stones

and verdant woods

I approach the treeline where mystery lay

and there in the shade of autumn's bough i see darkness rising.

close of day.

(but death,

a far

closer

one)

visited then and will on all men it is unchanged, like the virgin nest of the wip-poor-will though unwelcome tender unforgiving visitor on the side of the hill where i last heard his voice.

It is a limitless forum universal joy wrapped in shrouds of morning bringing all things into One

All chances and choices flowing across the deep scored soil of experience over the grit and the mud cool and ever present current and I stand in the mud of this branch call brown and wait.
